

2019: A Year of Strategy & Action

Greetings from PAGE!

I hope this brief message finds you doing well and off to a great start in the new year. As we begin 2019, I wanted to send a quick update about PAGE's priorities for the coming months. Last week, a handful of you were able to participate in our online yearly member meeting. During that meeting I briefly recounted some of our successes from 2018, while also looking ahead to what we are hoping to accomplish in 2019. This weekend the PAGE board met for their yearly strategic planning meeting in Harrisburg, during which time we further refined those goals. It was a productive and invigorating meeting that should set us up for a year of exciting success. As stakeholders in PAGE's work, I wanted to update you about these priorities. So, here they are.

In 2019, PAGE will...

1. Plan and run a first-rate annual gifted conference
2. Share the organization's expertise in more and varied contexts throughout Pennsylvania
3. Tell great stories about the work PAGE does on behalf of gifted education
4. Develop and grow strategic partnerships that can augment and deepen PAGE's work

We hope you agree that these are worthy goals for PAGE. As the year unfolds, we will continue to work to make these priorities a more tangible reality. If you are able and interested to help us in this mission, please don't hesitate to reach out to us. In the meantime, please continue to do everything you can in your own sphere of influence to bring this vision to reality. We are genuinely excited and honored to work alongside of you in these efforts.

Here's to a productive and invigorating 2019...

Daniel Rossi-Keen, PhD
President, PAGE